THE URBACT NETWORK ON CREATIVE CLUSTERS.-

Lead by the Portuguese city of Óbidos and the participation of Barnsley [UK], Reggio Emilia and Viareggio [Italy], Hódmezovásárhely [Hungary], Mizil [Romania], INTELI [Portugal], Enguera [Spain] and Jyväskylä [Finland], the URBACT network on Creative Clusters [please check at www.urbact.eu] is an added value cooperation project with the goal to perform a collective “learning by doing” exercise in the field of urban creative clusters.

The fundamental assumption is that creative issues in local economic development are also a functional pattern not just in metropolitan hubs. Even more, creativity as source of innovation should act as a cross cutting approach to re-think economic and social development in small and medium-sized towns, considering new opportunities related to accessibility, community life, culture and creativity-based business models.

During the period 2008-2011 this URBACT network is working on five key sub-themes: i) creative clusters: diversifying local economic base and opportunities to young people; ii) events and cultural agendas as catalysts; iii) promoting the creative city: a new range of facilities and infrastructures; iv) creative entrepreneurs and talented people: attraction and retaining; v) setting the basis: creative educational environments at local level.
