

World Bee Day 2022

in Ljubljana

All pollinators are important and welcome in the city of Ljubljana

Every year more and more people are becoming aware of the importance of pollinators. This year we would like to present the world of pollinators to as many people as possible and to let them know we have a variety of pollinators not just honeybees. We will continue with several of our activities which not only improve the look of the city but also provide pasture for pollinators. Having bees, butterflies, bumblebees and other pollinators visiting your public and private city gardens means you are doing something right. API pedagogy is an excellent way to let our youngsters know the far-ranging effect and importance pollinators have on the environment and sustainability.
